Chief Medical Officer

Helen Koselka, MD, FACP, CPE is the Chief Medical Officer for TriHealth. She previously served as Regional Chief Medical Officer for the Good Samaritan Region, overseeing the safety and quality of TriHealth sites such as Good Samaritan Hospital, Good Samaritan Evendale, Good Samaritan Western Ridge, and all other locations under the Good Samaritan umbrella.

Dr. Koselka became the Regional Chief Medical Officer for the Good Samaritan Region in 2017. She came to TriHealth in 1995 as the Director of Ambulatory Education for the Internal Medicine Residency and later became the Residency Program Director, Internal Medicine Department Chair and Good Samaritan Hospital Executive Medical Director.

Dr. Koselka attended Northwestern's Feinberg School of Medicine, earning her bachelor's and medical degrees through the six-year Honors Program in Medical Education, also completing her residency at Northwestern. She is board certified in internal medicine and is still actively seeing patients at the Faculty Medical Center.

Outside of medicine, she likes outdoor activities such as hiking, skiing and camping. She enjoys spending time with her family, including her husband, four kids and two dogs, cooking and entertaining friends.
