

Farhan Arif, MD, specializes in all the different aspects of kidney disease including Acute Renal Failure, Hypertension, GN, Kidney stones, Chronic Kidney Disease, Dialysis, transplant and other kidney related problems. He has a special interest in helping patients achieve good quality of life while dealing with chronic kidney disease.

Dr. Arif graduated from Rawalpindi Medical College, Pakistan in 2005. After completing his Internal Medicine Residency training from The Christ Hospital, Cincinnati, he worked as a Hospitalist for 7 years. Then he went back in training at The University of Cincinnati for a Fellowship in Nephrology to pursue his true passion to help patients with kidney diseases.

During his training he was awarded with Graduate Medical Trainee Award of Excellence for his leadership, dedication, and outstanding contributions to The University of Cincinnati. He also graduated with Best Fellow award for his class of 2018.

Dr. Arif's wife is an Internal Medicine physician practicing in Greater Cincinnati area. They have three boys who are keeping them busy. He likes to travel and play basketball with his boys during his free time.