

Jamie Hughes, stroke survivor, 50, received a bachelor's degree in Speech Communications and Journalism from Northern Kentucky University. Her main career has been as a stay-at-home mom for her daughter Haley (20) and Jake (17). Once Haley and Jake both got to high school, Jamie discovered her passion in greenhouse work. She loves plants, flowers- all things greenhouse! On March 6, 2023, Jamie suffered a stroke after going for a long walk while playing with her dogs in the yard. Her husband quickly recognized that something was wrong and relied on his son to quickly assess the "BEFAST stroke test" he had just been tested on in physiology class. She was taken to Good Samaritan where a thrombectomy was quickly performed to save her life. As she recalls the events of that day, she truly feels blessed that all the stars aligned, and that Divine intervention had a role in how quickly she was treated.
